

Cooling tower

Workmen top out the world's largest cooling tower—500 feet high and 400 feet in base diameter—in Charleston, W. Va. Heated water from a 1300-megawatt power plant is cooled within the tower as it flows down both sides of asbestos-cement sheets. Research-Cottrell poured 21,000 cubic yards of concrete for the tower.