

"Well, look at that! You seem to be resonant at 5 kHz."

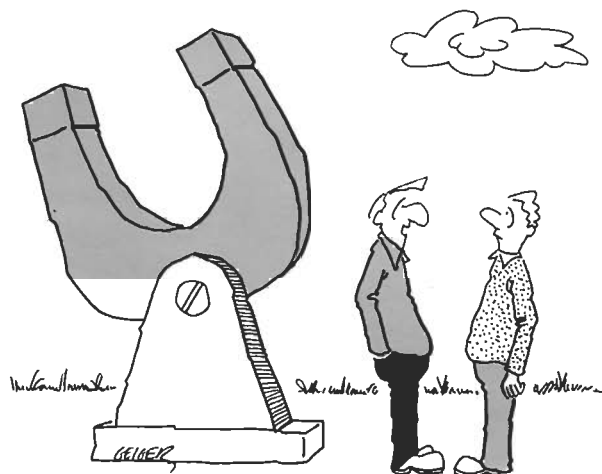

"So you don't think there's any market at all for digital shoes?"

"Ever since the storm blew my antenna into the lake, I've been getting transmissions from some station that calls itself 'Radio Atlantis'."

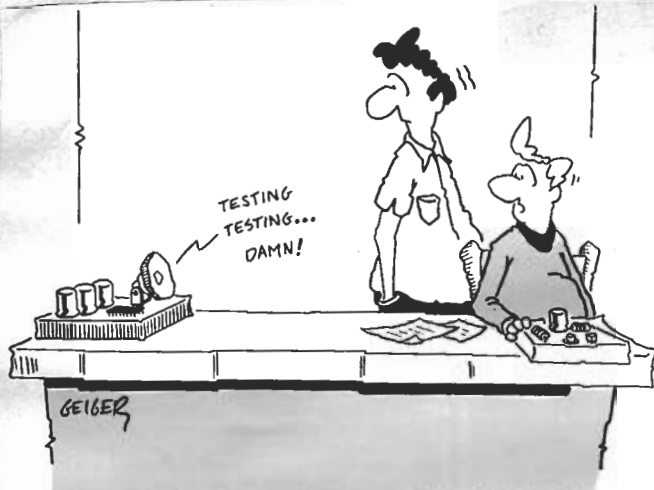

"I'll take one of those. Got any Wealth and Fame supplies?"

"Instead of just pulling in satellite TV signals, I'm going to pull in the whole satellite."

"Inflation."

"It's that reverb unit I was working on yesterday - I thought it was broken."

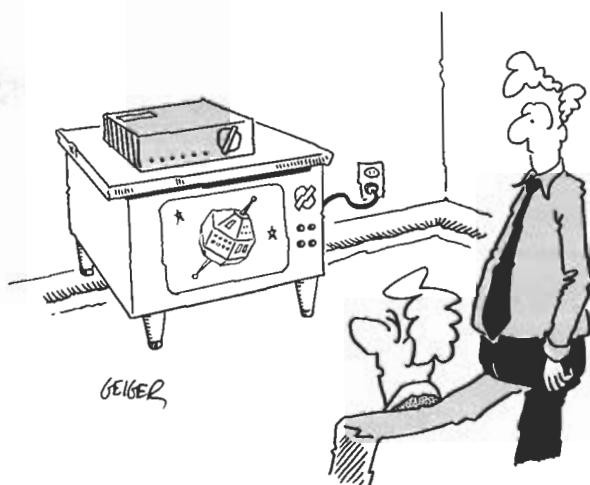

"I paid forty bucks for this video game called 'Fool's Delight', & there's nothing but a blank screen."

"Colorburst seems okay."

"An anti-glare screen for the CRT costs forty dollars, and sunglasses cost two dollars."

"I don't know about you, but the novelty of this 'Satellite TV' is fast wearing off on me."

"We're compatible on religion, love, and politics, but not on important issues—such as videotape versus video-disc!"

"This more"

who like to talk to

IMAGE
ER

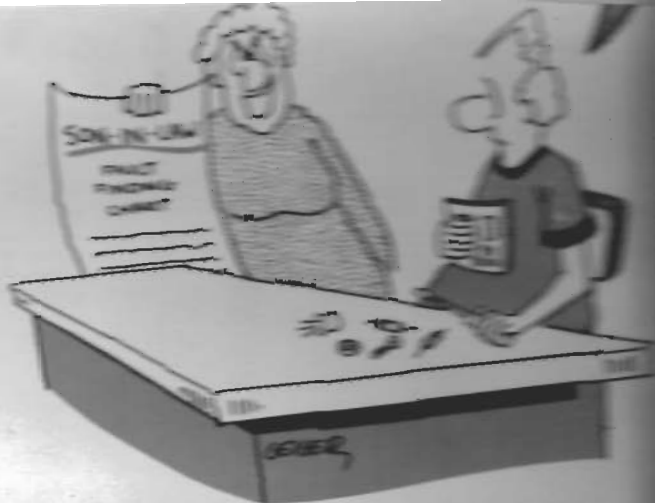

"I haven't made one sale yet."

COMPUTER SHOPPE

"If you're not sure about your future computing needs, this is one of our most flexible systems."

"In the spirit of the transistor radio fault-finding chart..."

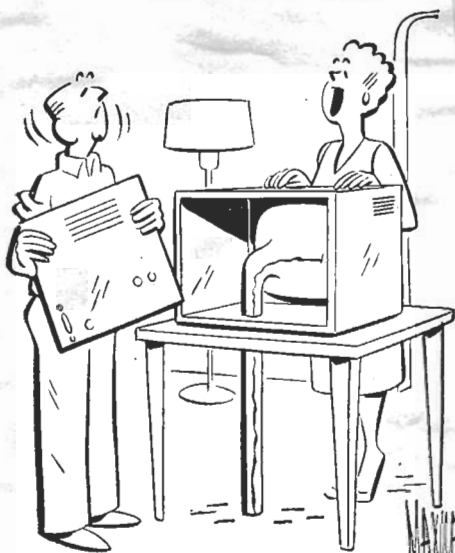

"He read a book on home electrical repairs... now he's waiting for something to break."

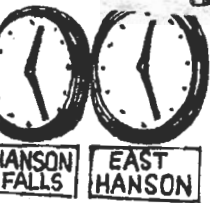

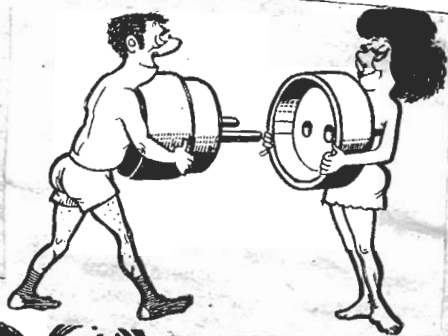

"It was very expensive, but it's an authentic old crystal set. You can tell, because the digital frequency readout is in Roman Numerals."

June, 1960

"It's the main set in the basement that's out of order—this is just the extension."

"All I hear is the funniest crackling noise."

Mykins

Sorry—I must have dozed off!

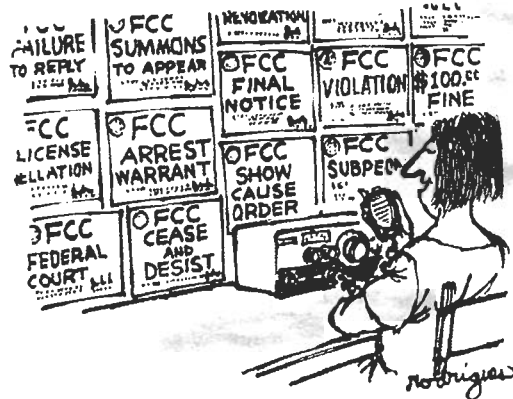

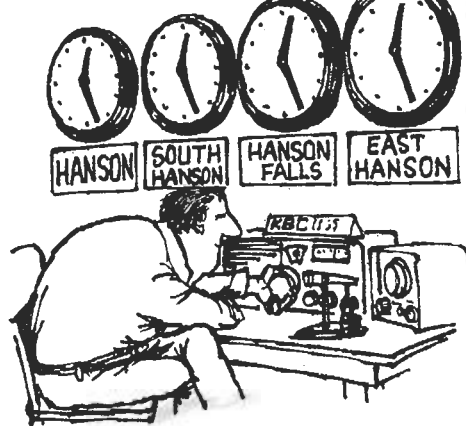

JACK
SCHMIDT

"When are you going to get color
so I can use it for my makeup?"

"I have some bad news for you, Mrs.
Benson! You know those lines you thought were crayon marks. . . ."

May, 1960

"So that's the way your television set acts up?—I'll go see if I can fix it."

JULY, 1953

"He's the owner of our new UHF station."

We hate to see you go, Joe.
Your designs have given us
many hilarious moments!

CAR RADIOS
REPAIRED
ALL MAKES

"We ran into a little trouble — he's stuck."

"Is the music too loud for you, dear?"

